Dear Ms. Sueur:

Further to our letter of May 12, 2005, attached is a copy of a Notice of Publication of Application issued by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office in connection with the above-identified application. This application was electronically published by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office on July 28, 2005, as Publication No. US-2005-0163702-A1. You will note that free access is available to this document via the Internet.

Upon publication, the application, including the application as filed and status information such as the title and date of papers filed by applicants and/or issued by the PTO, can be viewed by any interested party by accessing the PTO's website at www.USPTO.gov. The published application is not made available by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office except in electronic form.

Please note that under the Patent Laws as revised by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999, the grant of a patent now includes a provisional right to a reasonable royalty for infringement of claims in a pending patent application, subject to certain provisions including a requirement that the claims of the published patent application be "substantially identical" to the claims of the issued patent. Accordingly, to take advantage of the provisional right to a reasonable royalty, the claims in the published patent application must be accurate. You should, therefore, check the application, which will be available electronically on the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office website, to be sure that it has been correctly published. The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office will only grant requests for corrected or revised patent application publications if the request is filed within two months from the date of the patent application publication. This period is not extendible.
